AARB at AACRAO

From Ad hocery to Organized Chaos:
Advisors, Enterprise Architects, Registrars and Technologists working together to improve undergraduate advising

Monday, July 2, 2012
3:45pm – 5:00pm
Session ID: 160
About UW-Madison

- Founded in 1848
- Total Research Expenditures: #3
- Total Students: 42,441
  - Undergraduate (28,737)
  - Graduate (9,251)
  - Professional (2,823)
  - Specials (1,630)
- Total Schools and Colleges: 13
- Number of Degrees Awarded Annually: 10,099
Introductions

Scott Owczarek
University Registrar, Division of Enrollment Management

Jim Phelps
Enterprise Architect, Division of Information Technology

Jeffrey Shokler
Associate Director, L&S Honors Program
Five Years at Madison
Angst

"Go and plant trees, or do something worthwhile!"
Madison Initiative for Undergraduates (MIU)
Advisor Notes System and MIU Task Force
Advising Architecture Review Board (AARB)
Critical Success Factors

• The right people at the table
• Key retirements
• Maturity of the moment
• Buy-in and support from leadership
• Building on a win
Building the AARB

• Community buy-in and shopping the idea
• Build on existing governance
• Role of the Enterprise Architect
How we use the AARB
How we now guide technical decisions
How we use the core diagram
Moving to the CoRA Model
Outreach to projects and scalability
Scenario: SAM
(SOAR Advising Module)
Scenario: Future Planning
Scenario:
Impact(s) of Decisions
Scenario: Training Analysis
Summary

• From weeds to a garden
• From tactical to strategic
• From filling holes to knitting an experience
Questions?

Thank You!
Session ID: 160

Scott Owczarek, owczarek@wisc.edu
Jim Phelps, phelps@doit.wisc.edu
Jeffrey Shokler, jshokler@wisc.edu
For more information:

https://wiki.doit.wisc.edu/confluence/display/AARB/Home